The seized goods shall be delivered by the judge as a deposit to the Dirección General de Aduanas and may remain safeguarded in warehouses or containers within the facilities of the free zone or in the property in which the DPA operated, as determined by the customs service. If the facilities are totally vacated, the owner may dispose of them at will. In the event that a natural or legal person wishes to operate in the vacated facilities, the owner or manager must request the Ministerio de Economía the disqualification of the authorized area, and must present the documentation that proves the beginning of the corresponding process of abandonment of activity. The Ministerio de Economía shall initiate the process of disqualification of the authorized area, pursuant to the provisions of article 48 of this law. The disqualification of the area does not imply the revocation of the benefit agreement for the free zone or DPA user who is being prosecuted for abandonment of activity. In case the judge does not declare the abandonment of activity, the free zone or DPA user who still has his benefit agreement in force, may request the qualification of a new area.

If the domicile of the person to be summoned is unknown, or if it is verified through the report of the Dirección General de Migración y Extranjería that they have left the territory of the Republic without returning, or if said person could not be located after conducting searches at their place of residence, in any of these cases, it shall be ordered in a reasoned resolution that the summons be made by edict. The edict shall contain the same summoning details and shall be published once on the judicial notice board and in a printed newspaper with national daily.

After the publications have been made, if the defendant or his attorney-in-fact with special power of attorney to be summoned does not appear within ten business days from the publication of the edict in the newspaper with the largest circulation, the court will proceed to appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the defendant in the proceeding. The court may extend the powers of the appointed guardian ad litem, in order to represent the defendant in other civil, commercial, labor or administrative proceedings related to the defendant's obligations.

Based on the merits of the evidence, the judge will pronounce a judgment declaring or not the abandonment and cessation of the activity. If the claim is accepted, the judge will order the return of those goods that have been proven in the process to have been in the possession of the owner of the company, as a deposit, lease, financial lease, temporary transfer or other similar legal causes; he will order the vacating of the property, in case of lease or other titles of possession; he will order the seizure of the seized goods by means of an official order. The Ministerio de Economía will be ordered to proceed to the revocation of benefits and the disqualification of the authorized area, in case it has not been disqualified yet, and will order the publication in a printed newspaper of national daily circulation of an edict communicating the declaration of abandonment of activities, so that the creditors of the holder may exercise their actions in accordance with their rights.

If the existence of economic obligations payable by the titleholder has been proven in the process and once the judgment declaring the abandonment has become final, an appraisal of the assets shall be ordered by an expert appointed for such purpose, who must prove technical knowledge of such assets. The term to carry out the appraisal may not exceed seven working days counted from the acceptance and swearing in of the expert.

In the appraisal of the goods made by the appraiser, the value of the taxes applicable to the goods that have entered the national territory with suspension or liberation of import duties and taxes must be included.

Once the assets have been appraised, they shall be sold at public auction, prior appointment of place, day and time, the auction shall be announced by means of edicts, which shall be posted on the board of the court, at the entrances of the company's facilities and one that shall be published in an extract in a newspaper of national circulation, without the need to describe the assets. The notice shall be issued at least ten working days prior to the date on which the auction is to be held.

Once the auction has been approved, the purchaser must pay the cash price within five working days and, once paid, the auctioneer may remove the goods from the place where they are stored without presenting any proof of solvency in the name of said owner.

The proceeds of the sale will be remitted to the general treasury department, said authority will deposit the amount corresponding to the import taxes in the general fund of the state and the rest in the foreign funds in custody account, for the purpose of liquidating other obligations of the holder.

Creditor actions relating to obligations owed by the holder must be brought before the competent judge, who must process them in an abbreviated proceeding regardless of their amount and subject matter.

After six months from the publication of the edict announcing the declaration of abandonment, the judge shall pay the creditors that have been declared as having been (a) wages and other welfare benefits in favor of the employees of the company (a) wages and other social benefits in favor of the employees of the company; (b) taxes, duties, fees, fees, contributions and fines in favor of the fisco; c) the procedural costs of the process of abandonment and termination of activity; d) other debts shall be paid in advance, in accordance with the prelation of credits established by common law, by resolution.

If no bidder is present at the auction, the assets will remain in the custody of the depositary, the judge will award to the creditors for the appraised value of the seized assets in the order established in the preceding paragraph and without presenting any proof of solvency in their name. If there are several creditors in the same degree of preference, the adjudication will be made by drawing lots and pro rata.

In matters not provided for in this article, with respect to the abbreviated process, regarding the sale at public auction or adjudication, the provisions of the civil and mercantile procedural code shall apply. (14)

Art. 40-A.- When a beneficiary of this law notifies the General Directorate of Customs of the definitive closing of operations, it shall submit the information and documentation that demonstrates the cancellations of the goods declarations for imports under the free zone regime or temporary admission for inward processing and the payment of the duties and taxes for the goods covered in those that have not demonstrated their cancellation or discharge. The definitive closing of operations shall be carried out in accordance with the provisions of the regulations of this law. (15)

The closing or abandonment without notifying the general directorate of customs and without making the cancellations imposed by the customs regime, constitutes the crime of fraudulent evasion of customs revenue, punishable under article 22 of the special law to punish customs infractions, without prejudice to the civil and criminal liability to which it may give rise.

The foregoing, without prejudice to the revocation of the benefits that corresponds to the Ministerio de Economía (8).

Art. 41.- If a natural or legal person, owner of a company, after having obtained the benefits of this Law, has had them suspended or revoked, he/she may not request them for another company or appear as a shareholder or director of companies requesting them.

Art. 42.- The companies in which persons who were Directors or Shareholders of other companies whose benefits conferred by this Law were suspended or revoked shall not be entitled to the benefits granted by this Law.

When in the exercise of their supervisory powers, the general directorates of internal taxes and customs, acting jointly or separately, find that a beneficiary of the law, on the occasion of obtaining the qualification of access to the regime, carried out any of the situations provided for in the preceding paragraphs, they shall notify the Ministerio de Economía so that it may initiate the revocation procedure. After that date, they will not enjoy the benefits.
